Netflix Movies and TV Shows

Netflix was founded in 1997 by Reed Hastings and Marc Randolph in Scotts Valley, California, initially as a DVD rental-by-mail service. The company disrupted traditional rental models by introducing a subscription plan with no late fees.

In 2007, Netflix transitioned to streaming services, allowing subscribers to watch content online. This innovation marked the beginning of the streaming revolution. Netflix expanded its operations internationally in 2010, first entering Canada, and subsequently reaching over 190 countries.

By 2013, Netflix began producing original content, debuting with the critically acclaimed series House of Cards. This move solidified its position as not just a distributor but also a creator of award-winning content. Over the years, Netflix has invested heavily in original programming, producing hits like Stranger Things, The Crown, and Money Heist.

Today, Netflix is recognized as a leader in the entertainment industry, boasting over 230 million subscribers globally and continuing to innovate with features like personalized recommendations and interactive content.
